

1988 Case

why Scotland, with 10 per cent of the United Kingdom population and a relatively high number of independent producers, provided only 3 per cent of television network services.

He acknowledged there was a ent producers are not started either but they are badly served by the present networking arrangements in UK television," he said.

Mr Macdonald last night backed the Government's call religious or controversial matters.

● No company or individual outside the European Community may hold or control a franchise except for those for local delivery and cable services.

gate the bona fide nature of Scottish charitable organisations which apply for hostel status.

● Seeking details on whether Mr Moore's department is considering any further applica-

The star a letter & the chart following at Tain DSS had stringent

Asian wins fight against deportation

Babar Hussain: 'Torture' since deportation order

BABAR HUSSAIN, a Scottish-domiciled Asian, yesterday won his fight against deportation, writes JOAN McALPINE.

Mr Hussain said the surprising Home Office decision to rescind his deportation order was a victory for the people — including the author James Kelman — who had taken up his case.

His wife, Roheela, who is expecting their second child in a fortnight's time, said the decision by the immigration minister, Timothy Renton, ended five years of uncertainty when the family thought it would be split up.

"It has been torture. Since the deportation order last year, we did not know when they would come and take me. My wife was expecting and it really was a difficult time for us," said Mr Hussain. The couple, from Pollokshaws, Glasgow, are now able to go ahead with plans to open a small grocery shop.

Mrs Hussain was born in Britain. Her husband came here from Pakistan in 1983. The Government insisted that their marriage was one of convenience and that Mr Hussain was therefore an illegal immigrant.

"You do not have two children out of convenience," said Mrs Hussain yesterday.

A Home Office spokesman was unable to explain his department's change of heart. "We can confirm that Mr Renton has exercised discrimination in Mr Hussain's favour and we have withdrawn the deportation procedure. Officials will be in touch shortly to regularise his immigration position in the UK."

Tarlochan Gata Aura, a member of Mr Hussain's defence committee, said he was sure public pressure had influenced the decision.

"This is a tremendous victory for the family and in fact a victory for the black community in Scotland. The immigration legislation is clearly implemented to discriminate against black people and the original notice of intention to deport Mr Hussain was a racist decision."

"Without the public support, Mr Hussain would not have been allowed to remain in this country — other people in the same situation should take note of that. It's essential that they campaign."

Ex-husband rages over court award

By JOHN ROBERTSON, Law Correspondent

A BUSINESSMAN who is that Mr Berry accepted he challenging a ruling that he should pay a capital sum but should pay his ex-wife £720,000, was challenging Lord Milligan's arithmetic. Since the case began stormed angrily from the Court of Session yesterday after being he had done all he could to

Nurses in threat on grading

By SUSAN DEAN

NURSING unions in Glasgow have threatened to take Greater Glasgow Health Board to court over a move to implement a new nursing grading of ward

Beautiful Traditional Children's Clothes for boys and girls
0-12 years

Dresses for Summer Days
Bikinis, Beachwear and Swimsuits

6

Cognat
someth
extens